

Display of contemporary work

Top New Zealand contemporary artists have their work at the Fisher Gallery in Pakuranga for a short display only.

Items from artists including Jane Zusters, Pat Hanly and Robert Ellis are on show to enable onlookers to see different aspects of New Zealand contemporary art.

Gallery curator Louis Johnston says, "This kind of exhibition always gets a good response from the public as there's something for everyone.

The 26 paintings, sculptures, photographs and ceramic works called Celebration finishes on March 25.

When this ends the gallery will run evening classes on blind making. They will be led by Wendy Galvin starting on March 28.
